Detectives in Doubt as to the Whereabouts of the Robbers.

Marvin Kuhns' Old "Hang Out," in the Noble County Swamps, Being Searched by a Posse.

KENDALLVILLE, Ind., Sept. 14.—The railroad and express company officials evidently believe the train robbers are in this vicinity. Their movements, as well as what they say, indicate it. When the robbery was first reported strict watch was set on every outlet from this territory. Every town of any consequence is patrolled by detectives. Local police officers, as well as the secret service men of the companies are watching railroad junctions. All railroad men are on the lookout and railroad conductors have been known to be fairly good detectives. Under these circumstances it is hard to believe the robbers could have got away with their plunder without being intercepted. Then, this is a thickly settled farming country. In all directions from Kendallville stone farmhouses are scattered along the roads within shouting distance of one another. Men carrying the plunder these train robbers had could scarcely walk, ride or drive through such a country without being seen by some one, and they have not been seen. Hence the belief that the robbers have not gone far.

MARVIN KUHNS' OLD HAUNTS.

All efforts of the detectives are being confined to the district a few miles southwest of here in Greene township. If the train robbers are in Noble county, and this is the theory of the men hunting them, this district in Greene township is the likeliest place for them. It comprises the bad lands of northern Indiana. In that district Marvin Kuhns used to retire when hard pressed by minions of the law. That district was the headquarters for Kuhns when Abe and Bill Smalley were his lieutenants and he had at his back a gang which terrorized northern Indiana and defied the law. It is not by any means an impenetrable section of country, a land of swamps and heavy timber. It is like any of the surrounding country, although its swamps are rather better constructed for hiding purposes.

A GOOD HIDING PLACE.

It is the character of this section, at least the character given it in Kendallville, which renders it the likeliest resort for the train robbers. The people are said to be given to lawlessness. They protected Kuhns and his gang for years. Finally his gang was broken up—some of them killed and others sent to the penitentiary. Abe Smalley alone escaped. By many he is said to be still living in that district. While the inhabitants of that portion of Greene township have committed no direct acts of outlawry in recent years, they are said to be people who still wink at crime and whose sympathy is always against the law. Whitecap outrages have been attributed to them, though not proved. The railroad and express detectives are scouring that district now. The chief men expect to bag some game there in the next day or two. Anyone arrested will be brought here.

Hilliard, the accidental express messenger who was in the booted car, is here. He said the tramp who was riding on the platform of the express car are detained to assist Engineer Knapp in identifying anyone who may be brought in.

PROBABLY A CANARD.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—A dispatch from Kelseyville, Ind., a village in Allen county, about eleven miles west of Fort Wayne, and along the line of the Nickel Plate, says a fruitless attempt to capture five of the Kendallville train robbers was made at that place between 4 and 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A colored man, about twenty-five years of age, mounted on a tired looking pony, rode in at the gateway of the farm owned by Jerome Stansbury, and asked for something to eat. His peculiar appearance aroused Mr. Stansbury's suspicions. The negro explained that he had ridden ahead of four companions and that they would be along in a few minutes. Stansbury sent his daughter, Lizzie, aged ten, the back way through the cornfield into the town to tell Marshal Hardison to come with a posse of men as quickly as possible. Marshal Hardison succeeded in gathering twelve young men and started for Stansbury's. The chase was useless, Wilkinson and Hardison were outwitted, and, fearing for their lives, gave up the pursuit after they had gone a mile.

ARRESTS AT RICHMOND.

RICHMOND, Ind., Sept. 14.—Two men were arrested here yesterday and they are held as suspects in the Kendallville train robbery. They refuse to give either names or information.

WORK OF FIENDS.

Chop a Man's Arm Off to Extort Money.

Failing to Accomplish Their End They Split His Head Open and Kill His Little Son.

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, Sept. 14.—A horrible double murder occurred on the Venhorne ranch, near Del Rio, Tex., last Wednesday. A band of twelve Mexican outlaws visited the ranch on which lived an American and his little son. Having overpowered the man and plundered the house of everything of value and failing to find any money, they bound the ranchman and threatened to take his life if he did not tell them where he had his money concealed. He told them he had none. Then they cut off one of his arms above the elbow with a hatchet. They commanded him again to reveal the whereabouts of his hoarded wealth, but he could not convince them that he had none, and they cut off his arm and cut his body in a score of places. Then they split his head with the hatchet; seized the boy, cut his throat from ear to ear, and rode off, leaving the bodies to be devoured by vultures and coyotes. The rangers have captured two of them.

FAULKNER'S PLAN.

Retire All Notes Save the Legal Tender Greenbacks

And Issue Silver Dollars and Small Gold Pieces to Make Up the Deficiency.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Senator Faulkner will today offer in the senate his amendment to the pending financial bill, to which he referred in his speech. The amendment withdraws from circulation all notes save the legal tender greenbacks, of denominations less than ten dollars and substitutes in the stead silver coin, so that there can be no expansion of the currency except as provided in the further sections of his amendment. He believes that by the withdrawal of these notes silver dollars and five and two and a half gold pieces will circulate alongside of each other in the ordinary course of trade. It will provide for the coinage of silver up to an aggregate of $400,000,000 and when that amount is reached the coinage of silver will cease absolutely. The present aggregate of silver coin, including subsidiary coin, amounts to $615,000,000; that the increase under this act will be $185,000,000. It will be provided first that no more purchase of silver bullion shall be made until the seigniorage and bullion now in the treasury, amounting to $53,000,000, have been coined. This is to be done at the rate of $2,000,000 a month, and at this rate it will take more than three years to coin the seigniorage and bullion now in the treasury, the estimate being made, of course, on the coinage value of the bullion. When that period has elapsed the secretary is directed to buy silver and coin it at the same rate until the limit designated shall have been reached. Mr. Faulkner computes that to accomplish this will take about seven years and by that time we will have been able to determine what the future policy of the government regarding silver shall be. By that time, also, the vaults of any interest conference will have been accomplished and if an agreement is to be made the details can be arranged in ample time to meet the future. This is, in brief, what Mr. Faulkner seeks to do and with that end will lend his best endeavors, believing that this is the only solution towards which all factions can act in harmony.

NOT A TRAIN ROBBER.

He Adopts More Genteel Methods to Acquire a Fortune.

His Friends Place Him in Office and He Skips With the Well Filled Treasure Box.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 14.—It is announced here that City Treasurer Adolph Krug is a defaulter to a large amount. The statement was made by the Seattle Post-Intelligencer in an editorial that it would give $50 to any worthy charity if Mr. Krug could produce $30,000, which the last statement of the city comptroller showed should be in the treasury. This statement caused the finance committee of the city council to make an investigation, which resulted in finding but $70,000 in the city vaults. Treasurer Krug could not be found. It is believed that he has gone to British Columbia, as he has not been seen since early this morning. Mr. Krug was esteemed an honest man and had amassed a fortune by close business methods.

BRACKEN HAS THE GRIP

On the Internal Revenue Collectorship of This District.

His Appointment Will be Announced in a Few Days—Jump Leads in the Seventh District.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 14.—The appointment of William Bracken, of Franklin county, as collector of internal revenue for the Sixth Indiana district seems now to be the consideration of but a few days. This has been a case of nomination long deferred, not hopelessly, however, and Mr. Holman has been the victim of sacred promises, which seem to have required ages for execution. Congressman Holman claims to have had a distinct understanding with the treasury department that the appointment was dated for June 27, last. The president seems to have kept his hands severely off. He took no part in the matter one way or the other except to assure the Indiana congressmen that he was very much pleased that there should be no contest.

The delay in the collectorship appointments seems to have been unprecedented, and general surprise is ascertained in every section of the country. There are sixty-two collectors in all, and twenty-six vacancies yet remain. And of these twenty-six all have resigned with the exception of the western Pennsylvania collector. He believes that by the withdrawal of these notes silver dollars and five and two and a half gold pieces will circulate alongside of each other in the ordinary course of trade. It will provide for the coinage of silver up to an aggregate of $400,000,000 and when that amount is reached the coinage of silver will cease absolutely. The present aggregate of silver coin, including subsidiary coin, amounts to $615,000,000; that the increase under this act will be $185,000,000. DAN COUGHLIN.

One of the Cronin Murderers May Go Free.

Many of the Most Important Witnesses are Dead or Cannot be Found.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—Dan Coughlin, the ex-detective convicted of complicity in the Cronin murder of 1889 and recently granted a new trial by the supreme court may escape with no more than a sham legal battle for the sake of legal technicality. Many of the most important witnesses are dead or next to impossible to locate. The evidence against the other defendant cannot be used against Coughlin Some of this indirect testimony has much to do with weaving the web which finally landed Coughlin in Joliet, and its absence may assist him in escaping the legal penalty for his alleged wrong doing

Slater Attorney Kern, Inspector Schaack and Captain Schuettler were in conference the greater portion of yesterday going over the records of the case. The outlook was not encouraging to say the least and the three officers were by no means confident of winning the fight in court. The case will be called for trial in another week or ten days.

MUTINY ENDED

Among the Convicts in the Tennessee Penitentiary.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 14.—The mutiny among the convicts at the Tracy City mines is at an end, the fifty-four who refused to work having surrendered yesterday. Two of the leaders who came to the entrance to the mine and requested a conference with the warden were taken into custody, after which the other fifty two convicts also came out and were conducted back to their usual quarters. An examination of the mine revealed the fact that the convicts had prepared for trouble. Not only were there fifteen kegs of powder, with fuse attached, scattered along the entry, but there were also explosive bombs.

DROPPED DEAD.

Samuel Lamb, Who Was Once Sheriff of the Supreme Court.

RICHMOND, Ind., Sept. 14.—Samuel Lamb, seventy-four years old, dropped dead at the home of his cousin here, near this city. The deceased was at one time the sheriff of the Indiana supreme court and later he was sheriff of Hancock county. He was well known throughout the state. Mrs. Dr. Baker, of Indianapolis, is a daughter.

SUSPECTED FOUL PLAY.

Peculiar Death of a Young Lady Near Rockport, Ind.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 14.—Miss Ella Flynn, daughter of William Flynn, a prosperous farmer near Tennyson, met her death the other day in a peculiar manner. She went to a spring only a short distance from her home, accompanied by a negro man, for a bucket of water. Her escort filled the bucket and offered her a drink from a cup which she refused. Her escort then paid, "I'll drink first," and he held the cup to his lips. Miss Flynn then drank of the water, but scarcely had she taken the cup from her lips before she began screaming with pain, and he fell into her mother's arms. The girl was carried to the house and died almost instantly. The burial was had at Tenter. Since then there has been so much talk of possible foul play that preparations are making to exhume the body for examination

GOLDEN WITH AGE.

Death of Miss Ellen Hamilton at Nearly Four Score and Ten.

Miss Anna Maunn Passes Away at the Early Age of Twenty-six Years—Death's Harvest.

This morning at 10 o'clock, at the Hamilton homestead, in this city, occurred the death of Miss Ellen Hamilton, a member of one of the oldest and most prominent families of Fort Wayne.

She was taken ill four weeks ago last Saturday and has since then been confined to her room for most of the time. This developed into an acute form of indigestion and, in spite of the best medical attention at her advanced age, resulted in her death at the hour mentioned above.

Miss Hamilton was eighty seven years of age. She was a sister of the late Hon. Allen Hamilton, who was one of the most notable men in the history of Fort Wayne and who died some years ago. She was born at Irvingston in Ireland and came to this country about sixty years ago with her brother and made her home with him. For fifty-two years she has lived at the Hamilton homestead and made it her home.

Miss Hamilton was a member of the Berry street M. E. church, and has been since the organization of this congregation, having been one of its charter members. She was a lady of many noble qualities of mind and heart and a devoted Christian whose good works were many but, like those of the Hamilton family, performed quietly and unostentatiously

During her last illness she was lovingly and tenderly cared for and met death in her old age as a Christian should, fearlessly and knowing that she was prepared for the change that must come to all.

Her nieces and nephews now living to mourn her death are. Mrs. Mary Hamilton Williams, Mrs. Elizabeth Hamilton Wagenhals, Miss Margaret V. Hamilton, Hon. Montgomery Hamilton and Hon. A. H. Hamilton, the latter having been a former congressman of this district

A Saginaw representative called at the Hamilton homestead at noon to get from the deceased's niece, Miss Margaret Hamilton, the arrangements for the funeral, but was told that they had not yet been made. Miss Hamilton, who is deeply grieved by her aunt's death, said that her brothers, A. H. and Montgomery Hamilton, were away from the city at present and as soon as they were heard from the time of the funeral would be fixed

MISS ANNA HANNA.

After three years of patient suffering Miss Anna Hanna, daughter of the late Henry C. Hanna, died at her home, 125 East Berry street, at a few moments past 9 o'clock this morning. Her death, while not unexpected, was a severe blow to her relatives and caused wide spread sorrow among those whom she numbered as her friends. The deceased was born in the year 1867 and was therefore twenty-six years of age. Her early life was spent in this city where she attended the public schools. Her education was completed in a school at Toronto, Canada, about five years ago. She began failing about three years ago with lung trouble and sought the invigorating air of Colorado Springs and the balmy climate of New Mexico but to no avail. She returned to her home in this city about three months ago, and it was evident then that her death was only a matter of a short time. Her character was lovable and her aspirations high. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church of this city and her life was full of Christian gentleness. Death came to her as a kind relief from suffering and it was fitting that she should pass away when the first faint touch of Autumn has clothed the tenderest leaves and the more delicate flowers.

The funeral will be held at the family residence at a time not yet determined. Rev. Moffat will officiate.

Mrs. Rolla E. Wheeler, of 248 Hugh avenue, has been notified of the death of her uncle, Albert Baumgarten Mr. Baumgarten resided in Germany and was a noted architect on his day, having received several gold medals from the emperor for architectural works

OHIO'S DAY.

Governor McKinley Takes Part in the Exercises.

Exercises Predominate at the Fair Today—Over 50,000 of Them Are Present.

WORLD'S FAIR GROUNDS, Sept. 14—William McKinley, the governor of Ohio, his general staff and aids, the Third Infantry Ohio National Guards, Grand Army veterans and the state and national commissioners for the Buckeye state made a triumphal and imposing entry into the exposition grounds this morning by way of the Midway Plaisance. The procession was part of the Ohio day celebration, which has probably brought 70,000 Ohio people to the fair today. The total attendance is not likely to fall far behind that of Grand Army day. The governor and his staff formed state ride in carriages behind a company of Columbian guards, and the commissioners. He passed through lines of cheering thousands from the utmost parts of the earth but Americans, and especially those from the governor's state largely predominated. The Third Regiment band was in heavy marching order, which was rather trying to the soldiers on account of the heat. They marched decently strong, in command of Col. Chas. Anthony, of Springfield, and received great applause. The line of march was direct to the Ohio building where the order to disperse was given. The Ohio people will reassemble in the afternoon to take part in the usual exercises. The speakers will be W. W. Peabody, of the Ohio board of managers; Governor McKinley, Gen. R. Brinkerhoff, dedicating the bronze monument "These are my jewels," which stands outside the state building, Judge Samuel F. Hurd and Judge L. D. Thomas. In the evening a reception will be given for the governor and other state officials in the Ohio building.

MANY APPLICANTS.

The Number of Land Seekers Underestimated.

Over 40,000 Persons Anxious to be Placed on File for a Home in the Strip.

ARKANSAS CITY, Kas., Sept. 14.—Another hot wind is raging today and when it gets thoroughly warmed up to its work it will undoubtedly be hotter than the air which caused so much distress yesterday afternoon. The crowds at the booths were much greater this morning than they were yesterday and six additional clerks were set to work issuing registration certificates. Dr. Gallagher, who has charge of the registration, expects to issue 6,000 certificates today, but even if he succeeds in accomplishing this task, not more than half the persons in line today will be served. The crowds on incoming trains are larger today than at any previous time. It will be a low estimate to place the number of people in the city at 40,000, to say nothing of the thousands who are camped up and down the border and along the river banks. Reports were telegraphed by the Cherokee officials yesterday to Secretary Hoke Smith for permission to put well diggers at work on the Indian allotments that water may be in readiness for the crowds that will rush into the new country on Saturday and who are certain to suffer intensely from thirst. This morning replies were received denying the request. Many people who came here to seek homes have become disgusted with the crowds, the registration and the dust and hot winds and have turned their faces away from the parched and sweltering land of promise. Their places are quickly filled with new arrivals, however, and they are not missed.

MURDERED HIS FATHER.

Terrible Deed of a Tennessee Farmer.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 14.—In November, 1891, David Boyer, a wealthy citizen of Cook county, disappeared, and his son circulated the story that he had sold him his farm and gone west. The deed proved to be a forgery, and he, with Rufus Holt, an accomplice, was recently arrested for forgery. Yesterday a confession by Holt was made public. He said that Wash Boyer knocked his father down and beat him to death. He then carried the body to a cavern, threw it in, and afterward, to ward off suspicion, threw several dead sheep in on top of it. Young Boyer is now in jail.

TWO BOYS KILLED.

They Steal a Ride and Get Into a Freight Wreck.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 14.—Two Milwaukee boys were killed and a third was injured in a wreck on the St. Paul road last night. The boys were stealing a ride on a south bound freight train which was wrecked near Oak wood. The second section of a north bound limited train narrowly escaped an accident several cars of the wrecked train being thrown across the north bound track. The freight crew by prompt action signaled them and the limited was stopped within fifty feet of the wreckage.

A RANK FAKE.

There Was No Fight at Kelseyville.

The Battle Between Train Robbers and Farmers only the Imagination of a Newspaper.

The story concerning the skirmish between the Lake Shore train robbers and a posse of farmers at Kelseyville which was sent out from Toledo last night and published in one of the Chicago papers this morning, is looked upon as a fake. Kelseyville, the alleged scene of the battle, is a country postoffice, eleven miles west of this city and in Allen county. The story evidently originated from the fertile brain of some very imaginative person.

Had there been a fight, such as described in the dispatch, the news of the encounter would certainly have reached this city before it did Boston. The officers here know nothing of the affair and pronounce the story a rank fake.

The county and municipal officials here are keeping a sharp look out for the robbers and if they come this way they will surely be apprehended.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The new white house baby will be known hereafter as "Esther." This old-fashioned name has been selected for the child by the president and Mrs. Cleveland. It is stated that the selection of this name has no significance other than the partiality of the parents for scriptural denominations and that it means "a star," and "good fortune."

GALLANT OLD BOYS!

Veteran Volunteer Firemen Permanently Organized.

Officers Elected at Their First Regular Meeting Last Night—Plans Also Formed for the Future.

[illegible] held one's heart good last evening to look in upon the gathering of old time volunteer firemen as they met for the purpose of forming a permanent association, in one of the state rooms of the Swegenhard hall, over No. 54 East Main street. Between fifteen and twenty veterans were present at the meeting. Many heads were already silvered over with the frosts of the later days of life; forms that were once erect as poplars and sturdy as oaks, were bent now, and many voices which had shouted "fire!" "fire!" in thundering tones in the early days of our city's history had weakened into a "thin piping treble." Yet the spirit of the old time firemen was with them and fancy easily spanned the few short years, bringing a vivid picture of the gallant volunteer firemen to mind. Again they flew like the wind, clad in their fire red shirts, up and down the streets, often times rescuing lives and saving thousands of dollars worth of property. Let them not be forgotten.

The meeting last evening was called to order by August Lordier, temporary chairman. He stated that this was the second meeting of volunteer firemen and it was the purpose to form a permanent organization and elect officers. Mr. Lordier further stated that the impression had gone out that the old firemen had been calling these meetings simply for the purpose of holding a picnic and celebration some time. "This," said Mr. Lordier, "is a mistake. As I understand it, we are to form a permanent organization and meet at stated intervals in some hall yet to be decided upon. What we want to do is to keep alive the spirit of old time good fellowship which existed between the volunteer firemen. This is to be a united gathering of firemen of all the old companies and no one company is to have any more to say than another. We are to be united."

The veterans did not spend much time dilly-dallying. They got right down to business, and, as a result, the following officers were elected:

President—August Lordier.
Secretary—Robert Cran

The following gentlemen were therefor selected: W. F. Kindt, G. M. Forney, W. O. Ford, Robert Cran and Louis Bourie

It was decided to hold the next meeting on the evening of the 27th of September in the same place and it was earnestly requested of all present to try and induce their old time comrades to turn out at the next meeting.

The names of the charter members of the organization were last night placed on the roll by the secretary and are as follows: August Lordier, John B. Conklin, W. O. Ford, John G. Noll, Frank Maunler, Joseph Nichter, Mike Brucker, Christ. Lehrman, William Kemp, Theodore Bly, Joseph A. Carey, F. Bobbo, G. N. Fordney, Charles Michaels, Fred Pelsinger, He ny Hilbrecht, Robert Crow, B. Spiegel, Thomas Ravenaugh, H. A. Michaels, Louis Bourie, John McGowan, John Fox and Robert Dalman.

It was decided to charge a trifling initiation fee, the exact amount to be decided upon at the next meeting To a SENTINEL representative, after the adjournment of the meeting, President Lordier stated that there were at least 300 volunteer firemen in this city at one time. Last night the following old companies were represented: Alert Mechanics, No. 1; Vigilants, No. 2; Eagle, No. 3; Hope hose, No. 4, and Torrent, No. 5. THREW AWAY MONEY!

A Stranger Who Didn't Mind Hard Times.

Fort Wayne Police and Chicago Detectives Working Together—Large Police Court Line Morning.

About midnight last night a drunken stranger stood on West Columbia street near the Wayne hotel, and began to yell at the top of his voice and throw handfuls of silver coin upon the sidewalk. Passers by took the fellow to be one of the train robbers, and pretty soon Officer Petgen came running up and placed him under arrest. The money which the fellow threw away amounted to $7 or $8, and was picked up by some of the night messenger boys of the district messenger office. At the station house the fellow said he had unfortunately been named John Smith. He put up the amount of his fine, $10.50, and went away.

CHIEF'S RANCH KEPT.

The Fort Wayne police are just now working up every clew which might throw some light upon the recent train robbery. Detectives from Chicago are here and every suspicious stranger is closely watched. Tuesday a stranger who had a large envelope filled with cash and who acted in a suspicious manner was closely shadowed. The fellow got on a Main street electric car and went west. He soon returned and took a Lewis street car, and getting off at the end of the line, started to walk in an easterly direction at a rapid gait. The fellow was dressed in blue and wore a slouch hat.

POLICE COURT NOTES.

Police court was crowded with a curious throng this morning.

Ike Meyers, a tough, said he was drinking pop and lemonade and got drunk. He was arrested by Officer Folgen. It is suspicioned that Meyers "worked" a drunken pal to the tune of $25 or $30. The mayor fined him $5 and costs for being so funny. He went to jail.

Edward W. Tonney was fined $1 and costs for being drunk. He was suspicioned of being the man who robbed Lauer, but seems to be a common everyday drunk. He went to jail.

Louis Lindeman was a stranger who was arrested by Officer Spillner about 1 a. m. on Main street. He was drunk and noisy. He was fined $1 and costs.

John Miller tried to explain how he came to be drunk, but got only far enough to bear himself fined $1 and costs.

Anna Phillips and Adelia Weston, two prostitutes, were fined $5 and costs each and went to jail. They are well known to the police.

MANY DEAD FISH

Line Our River Banks Poisoned by Chemicals.

The banks of the St. Mary's and Maumee rivers are lined with dead fish, which were poisoned by chemicals being emptied into the water by some manufactory near the St. Mary's river. For two or three days past thousands of dead fish, ranging in size from six to fifteen inches, could be seen floating down and lodging along the banks. On the old Main street pier some 2,000 or 3,000 are lying about and the stench arising from them is sickening. We are informed that the fish commissioner has been notified, and that unless the wanton destruction of fish is stopped, proceedings will be instituted against the parties responsible for it.

Thrilling Story Most Plainly And Graphicelly Teld.

Did You Ever Read Anything of Greater Interest.

The following communication from Mrs Minnie Miller, who resides at 5 Ruthven street, Fort Wayne, Ind., explains itself

"For many years I was troubled with indigestion and constipation. Three years ago I became so weak and nervous that I was a complete physical wreck. I had dizzy spells, palpitation of the heart and numbness of my hands and feet.

"These attacks came often and each time worse. My life was a burden to me and a trouble and worry to all my friends. I expected to die. At times I thought I should loose my mind. My stomach was in such a condition that I could eat nothing but a very little of the lightest kind of food. Sleep was impossible and every little noise would startle me and I would feel faint.

"No one can imagine the agony I suffered but those who are afflicted with nervousness. I cannot describe the feeling in half its horrors.

"At last I saw Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy advertised and read the testimonials of cure of some of those who had been afflicted as I was, so I thought I would try it. Wonderful to relate the first bottle helped me so much that I had faith in it. I took two more bottles and oh! I felt so much better. I can sleep soundly and the nervous feeling has almost left me. I can eat with a good appetite and have gained seven pounds.

MRS. MINNIE MILLER.

"My friends say that I am looking so much better and I know that I am feeling as they say I look. I tell everybody that the Nervura has done it. I cannot say enough for it and I praise the Lord and thank this wonderful medicine for giving me relief.

"I am only too glad to recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy to any one afflicted as I was and I hope this testimonial will be the means of inducing many to use this marvellous remedy."

If you are a sufferer do not fail to get this medicine immediately from your druggist. It costs but $1 and it is purely vegetable and harmless. Owing to its great strengthening and invigorating powers it is the best medicine possible to take. It is the prescription and discovery of Dr. Greene, of 35 W 14th street, New York, the most successful specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases and the doctor can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

THE SOCIAL SOCIETY—Regular meeting

OCCULT SCIENCE SOCIETY—Regular Meeting

The gag rule ought to be put in force in the United States senate. We have had talk enough.

There are a million more men than women in the United States. The girls can just about have their pick.

The state of Illinois will use this year more than a thousand barrels of beer. This would be enough to float a navy.

It is said to be a foregone conclusion that Col. Wm. Hoynes, of Notre Dame, will be the republican nominee for congress in the South Bend district next year.

Democrats indicate that there is to be an early effort to put through the senate an amendment to the repeal bill of the nature outlined by Senator Faulkner in his speech a few days since. It will provide for the purchase and coinage of $4,000,000 in silver a month until the silver circulation in this country shall amount to $40,000,000, and for the retirement of all paper currency of less than $20. The proposition has developed considerable strength—its friends think sufficient to insure its adoption.

The business men of the country have already anticipated the final action of the senate on the currency issue, and are expanding their operations. The bankers have responded to the action of the house on the question of repeal, and are enlarging their accommodations to customers. The firm attitude of the administration in respect to the Sherman law and the prompt action of the popular branch of congress have done much to restore confidence. The senate alone stands in the way of a full realization of the benefits which are anticipated from the establishment of a sound and stable currency, and its delay, under all the circumstances, appears wholly inexcusable and without justification.

The bold and successful train robbery near Kendallville the other morning makes it evident that somemore effective defense will have to be provided for trains carrying large amounts of money or bullion in the near future. The depredations of these armed bands are becoming simply intolerable. While as a rule they devote their chief attention to the express cars, they sometimes rob the passengers on board the trains they attack as well, and on more than one occasion plucky passengers have paid for a display of courage with their lives. County authorities appear to be practically helpless in the matter, as they cannot be called into service until after the robbery has been committed. It may yet be come necessary to carry express valuables on special trains carry a heavily armed escort

In the address at the congress of religions held in Chicago, P. C. Mozoomdar, the Hindoo representative from India, in speaking of the widows of India said, "Do you know what the widows of India are? A little girl of ten or twelve years happens to lose her husband before she knows his features very well, and from that tender age to her dying day she shall go through penances and austerities and miseries and loneliness and disgrace which you tremble to hear of. I do not approve of or understand the conduct of a woman who marries a first time and then a second time and then a third time and then a fourth time—who marries as many times as there are verses in the gospel. I do not understand the conduct of such men and women. But I do think that when a little child of eleven loses what none call her husband, and who has never been a wife for a single day, to put her to the wretchedness of lifelong widowhood and indict upon her miseries which would disgrace a criminal, is a piece of inhumanity which cannot too soon be done away with."

The accounts of the Kendallville train robbery show beyond doubt that it was the work of men experienced in this form of brigandage. No amateurs could have done the job. The point with which the robbery was carried out indicates that the gang was made up of professional of the first class. They displayed a knowledge of railroading and the express system far beyond the attainments of gangsmen or tramps. The turning of the switch signal, the use of dynamite and the guarding of the passengers were characteristic of desperadoes who have made train robbing a study. With these facts in view, says the Chicago Herald the police should not have much trouble in locating the robbers. There are not more than a dozen men in the country capable of doing this class of work. The difficulty here, or should have, a partly reverse kind of one of their whereabouts. They may not escape, arrest at once, but that they will be caught sooner or later is certain. The Kendallville gang did their work a little too neatly. They have simplified the work of the police and practically inscribed their own capture.

INNOCENCE ABROAD.

A gentleman returned to Washington from Norfolk, Va., tells this little story of a bath, but found the accommodations very meager. However, he tipped the colored attendant, he secured the use of a tub and per formed his ablutions. The next day he happened to ring up the same bell boy, who manifested much surprise. "Lord, boss, I 'spozed you must be in a hurry to get to Chicago by dis' time." "Why?" inquired the Washingtonian. "You took a bath yistiddy," said the obliging attendant. "Well, what has that to do with my departure?" "Oh, nobody ever takes a bath here without dey's gittin' to leave town."

There was a dreadful sensation. The elder children snatched up the younger and fled from the room. The hostess clasped her babe to her breast and glared at the intruder as though he had come purposely to deprive her of her offspring.

"Oh see some here from a house full of scarlet fever," she gasped.

"Don't you be frightened about me," returned that awful boy; "it never catch anything." But he did that time.

How Germs Multiply.

Germs of contagious diseases are capable of multiplying themselves with marvelous rapidity. A single germ, when placed in surroundings favorable to its growth, quickly divides into two. Each of these divides itself again, and so on, the number soon reaching into thousands. It has been estimated that by the end of twenty-four hours a single germ will have multiplied itself into more than 16,000,000 germs.

TE LTIMORE'S CYCLONE

Baseball Pitcher, Who Never Lost a Game, Retired.

Record of Victories

William C. Hawke, who is one of the pitchers of the Baltimore club of the National league and American association, is a pitcher of rare ability. He is a steady and puzzling pitcher, and this fact in his services being secured by the Baltimore club. Hawke's pitching for the Elkton team, was credited with striking out no fewer than twenty-one of the local team in a twelve inning game played Sept. 1, last at Middletown, Md., and with retiring in a similar manner nine men of the Schuylkill Navy team in a game played Aug. 25, last, at Elkton. The latter game pitching feats were remarkable, but were nearly equaled Aug. 24, 1891, at Pocomoke City, Md., when Hawke pitched for the home team in a thirteen inning game with the Virginia team, and succeeded in striking out twenty-two men. His first regular professional engagement, however, was with the Reading club, of the Pennsylvania State league, with which league with which he remained the season of 1892, and played two games. In 1891 he was engaged by the St. Louis club, of the National league and American association, with which he pitched last season in eleven championship games. A number of the contests terminated in victories for his team. He commenced the present championship season with the St. Louis club but was soon released to the Baltimore club. Hawke's first appearance there was in a game with Pittsburg. As another feat he once hurrying up and down the baseball ground, he plays a little match of light would thicker through, marking, where his took her instrument to such, of a narrow golden rim would show for a minute like a streamer, as if she were trying to rest her way out, or something else would appear, disappear, what looked like her wand glancing from the all surrounding blackness.

WM. C. HAWKE.

There was one steady pyramid, where the clear blue way cut the clouds apart, and down this path her imperial brightness stepped serenely, deadening the chrysolant of some lesser and lesser fire. And soon in the darkest tones, when the black mass spread all around, up in the zenith the clouds were white and clear, showing behind their darkness her light was bent out to bless the loyal parts of her kingdom. Once she seemed to tread along the very top of a murderous-looking sea of clouds as if she knew not what fear meant. As the hours passed by and the white clouds ranged themselves into little markerelled waves, patines of silver turning to gold where she smiled upon them. Sometimes her path seemed to [illegible] she had been driven out of her course, but the illusion vanished with the fadelfying cloud and he mists came down again from her approach. Once the scientists ray she is cold and wrinkled; that she has lost all the brightness that once was here. How dauntless must her spirit be that even after nature has told her that her work is done, she yet refuses to be a useless part of the universe, but still sends her light and beauty and holds her regal sway in the deep blue heavens, and even from black clouds seems to draw an added glory of victory, which makes her still more radiant.

Beautiful queen! Reaching down to the far away sun she stores her heart full of its light and, in order to pour out the splendor of her soul in sunshine she does continual battle, unwearied and undismayed, with those wandering hosts that in mere wanton spurtiveness seek to imprison her in the heavens behind them, leaving her earthly worshipers in darkness.

He Never Caught Anything.

I remember years ago, says a writer, a Texas girl cousin from the country here recently joining a family party in town at tea. He had brought his portmanteau, and, like one of Mr. Bailles' young men, arrived in London to make his fortune, had evidently "come to stay."

"Glad to see you, Jack," said the hostess, "but to whom are we indebted for this condescension?"

In fact, such a lucky Old Dobbins (his future) and half the pupils are down with scarlet fever."

The elder children snatched up the younger and fled from the room. The hostess clasped her babe to her breast and glared at the intruder as though he had come purposely to deprive her of her offspring.

"Oh see some here from a house full of scarlet fever," she gasped.

"Don't you be frightened about me," returned that awful boy; "it never catch anything." But he did that time.

Z OLD GOLD IS SCARCE.

Refiners Compelled to Buy Coin to Be Used for Mechanical Purposes

Old gold is in great demand. It is bought by the refiners for mechanical purposes and is paid for in spot cash of the greenback variety. Old gold is very rich, says the Boston Herald, not only in monetary value but in strange and interesting suggestions. Most of it is in the shape of dilapidated jewelry. A worn band of gold comes in. It was once a wedding ring and must have been held as precious beyond all price by the bride who wore it during her honeymoon. In after years it was worn and worn till it was almost worn away, it must have instituted many fierce battles in value. The ring does not say whether its owner is happy or not. The link of gold may have bound together a loving husband and wife, or it may have connected a widow with heaven, or with the coldness of steel it may have held her lifeless guardian while she united to a new protege she hated. The ring tells none of these things. It is old-fashioned and worn, and that shows that it has seen long service. Perhaps it was worn by strangers being superseded by another wedding ring, or, perhaps, it was a precious family heirloom, handed down from generation to generation. The superstitious talk it on a smooth stone until it leaves a yellow streak. A drop of nitric or compound acid dissolves this mark so that the expert assayer can tell the purity of the gold. Then it is carefully weighed and paid for by the [illegible] perhaps, of three or four cents a karat.

All sorts of curious things are sold for the precious metal they contain the rubbish that are broken beyond repair, old seal rings and rings that have separated with gnawing gems. A broken locket once contained a miniature and probably holds the secret of a romance. A friend's trinkets [illegible] gold and silver, you say to yourself, and still holds a lock of somebody's hair. It was bought, fair and all, and will go into the melting pot with the shiny metal. Some of the gold coins already melted into bars, some of it in the form of plates, the thinnest sheets of gold [illegible] Most of it, however, is in the form of [illegible]

Where to Put the Ark of the Covenant.

Previous to the destruction of the "Temple of Solomon" by the Babylonians the ark of the covenant was considered blessing, but what became of it after that time is not known. It is believed by some to have been taken away or destroyed by King Nebuchadnezzar, while reposition of the Jews believed that it was concealed from the invaders, and account it among the "hidden things" which the Messiah (whose advent many Jews expected especially) but because you did your self an injury."

"How so?" asked Mrs. Blobbs, interestedly.

"Oh, I don't know," replied Mrs. Blobbs, sweetly, for she saw through the scheme immediately. "You see I went through the pockets and found the money. I went shopping with it yesterday."

BLOBBS' BLUFF WAS CALLED.

His Wife Saw Through His Schemes and Talked the Tables to Him.

It was late with Mr Blobbs got up the other morning, and he hustled around his bedroom like a wild man. When it came time for him to put on his trousers he plunged into a wardrobe and pulled down all the garments that were on the hooks. Then, says the Buffalo Express, he fell on his knees and paused the pile over nervously. He handled every garment twice and did not find what he wanted. He swore three separate and distinct oaths and then shouted "Mary!"

There was no reply. Blobbs poked his head out of the door and yelled again "Mary!"

"What is it, dear?" asked some one at the rear end of the flat.

"Come here and get a move on, too."

Mrs. Blobbs came into the room. Her face was flushed from breakfast preparations, and there was some suet on her nose. "What do you want?" she asked

"Where's them gray pants of mine?"

"What gray pants?"

"Them gray ones that's been hanging in that closet for two months."

"Aren't they in there?"

"No, they ain't in there? Now, what have you done with them?"

"Were they gray with a red stripe in them?"

"You know well enough that they were. Don't stand there chewing about them any longer. Where are they?"

"Gray ones with red stripes?" mused Mrs. Blobbs. "I'm sure I don't know. Oh, yes, I do, too; I traded them off to a man for a lovely kettle."

"You what?" gasped Mr. Blobbs

"Traded them off for a kettle. You didn't want them, did you?"

Mr. Blobbs was so mad that he frothed at the mouth. He raved and shouted around the room. He kept this up for ten minutes. Then he saw that Mrs. Blobbs didn't care, and he tried other tactics. "I'm sorry you sold them," he said, not because you did your self an injury."

"How so?" asked Mrs. Blobbs, interestedly.

"Why I had $10 in one of the pockets of those pants that I was going to use to get you a birthday present next week. I kept it there so I would have an opportunity to spend it. Now aren't you sorry you sold the pants?"

There are others, but you don't want them; take our word for it, for when you need a plaster you need it, and there's no time for experimenting and finding out mistakes then. RAILWAYS AND SHOPS.

Travel to and from the World's Fair is Increasing.

Accidents, Incidents and Personal Mention of the People About the Railway Centres.

Travel to and from Chicago increases as the closing days of the great exposition approaches. Nearly every train on the Pittsburg and Nickel Plate railroads are now running several sections and the carrying capacity of each road is taxed to accommodate the heavy traffic. During the past twenty four hours twenty five passenger trains on the Pittsburg and about half that number on the Nickel Plate passed through this city. One train, the Columbian express, ran four sections twenty minutes apart, and the number of passengers on each section would average 300. Taking this as a basis, upon which to figure, it would make the total number of through passengers carried over the Pittsburg alone last night and to-day 7,500. Added to this the 3,000 people carried by the Nickel Plate, would have the magnificent sum of 10,500 passengers in one day.

BRIEFLY TOLD.

Supt. G. D. Law is able to walk about.

Boilermaker J. Isbaich, of the Bee works, is off duty.

Car Repairer Ed Alway, of the Nickel Plate, is sick and off duty.

William Beachum, Nickel Plate car repairer, is attending the fair.

Passenger Conductor John Sloan, of the Pittsburg, is on the sick list.

George Yost, draughtsman at the Bass works, has returned from the world's fair.

Fireman Braithwait, of the Nickel Plate, has reported for duty, after a brief absence.

John H. Franke and E. Tagtmeyer, machinist at the Pittsburg shops, are taking a vacation.

Mrs. Edward Deegan, wife of the Wabash blacksmith, has gone to Chicago to visit friends.

Work has been resumed on the extension of the Chicago and Southeastern road to Brazil, Ind.

All ticket collectors on the Big Four lines have been taken off. It required fifteen for the Chicago division.

W. Slenbundy, of the Pittsburg machine shop, will go to Chicago next Saturday to spend a week at the fair.

Governor Pattison and staff were passengers on Pittsburg train No. 8 last night en route home from the fair.

Boilermaker Henry Rehling has recovered from an illness and this morning resumed his work in the Wabash shops.

Last month the freight earnings of the Wabash decreased $37,110, while the passenger earnings increased $70,274 over August, 1892.

Supt. G. L. Potter and Master Mechanic W. W. Atterbury have returned to the city. The former was east and the latter was in Chicago.

Sumner Oaks, the Pittsburg passenger conductor, is reported much worse today. He is suffering with paralysis and his condition is precarious.

Nickel Plate Switchman Zinn and his wife have gone to the fair. During their absence Yard Brakeman Meyers will attend switches in place of Mr. Zinn.

Pittsburg trainmen who are off duty: Engineer C. Sweeney, family sick; Engineer J. Leiper, sick; Engineer G. Kendll, permission; Fireman G. H. Brown, sick.

Master Mechanic F. A. Rider, of the Bass works, was called to Walton, N. Y., last night by a telegram announcing the death of his father, who had been ill several months.

J. F. Guy, a Nickel Plate brakeman who lives in this city, yesterday received a dispatch from Erie, Pa., stating that his father had died suddenly in that city. Mr. Guy left on No. 6 last night for Erie.

Nickel Plate Conductor Jack Sommers and his crew has been sent from the fourth district to the third, at Leipsic, to clear the wreck which occurred last Sunday. They will be absent from this city one week or more.

Word reached this city yesterday of the death of the Nickel Plate yardmaster and his assistant at Buffalo. The gentlemen were talking to some friends, while standing upon the tracks, and were run down and instantly killed by cars. Their names could not be learned.

"Tip" was run over and killed by a switch engine at the crossing of the Pittsburg road and Lafayette street, at 10:30 o'clock last evening. "Tip" was a dog and he belonged to Machinist John Nolan. He was a very friendly dog and a great favorite with all the children living in the vicinity of Cleveland street.

An effort is on foot to have the Terre Haute car works can be gotten out of the hands of a receiver they will be rebuilt. Several parties have offered to furnish the money on long time, in years past this has been one of Indiana's most prosperous industries, and its resumption of business will be cheering news.

William Brower, baggagemaster, and John Brunso, the Adams Express messenger injured in the Panhandle wreck, near Chicago, last week, who were thought to be fatally hurt are in a fair way to recover. In fact, the surgeons think the danger point is passed. Thus far thirteen deaths have resulted from this accident.

The Logansport Journal says: "Gus Crozier and William Myers, formerly employed in the Panhandle locksmith shops here, but for a year or more of the Pittsburg Fort Wayne and Chicago shops at Fort Wayne, have returned to the city to work. The former is again at work in the Panhandle shops while the latter is employed in William Deamp's boiler shops."

Last Tuesday evening as Panhandle passenger train No. 24 was approaching Mills Grove a little girl was discovered in the middle of the track, waving a flag. The train was stopped and investigation showed that a wooden bridge over a culvert around a curve was on fire and had it not been extinguished would have weakened the structure so that it would not have borne the weight of the train. The little girl, eight years old, giving the name of Jennie Crick, was handsomely rewarded by the passengers.

An attempt was made Monday night to wreck the fast train No. 8 out of Chicago for Indianapolis over the Big Four. Just after leaving Fox station the engineer noticed some obstruction on the track and applied his brakes, slowing down the train as far as possible before it struck the obstruction, which consisted of three new cross ties placed between the rails in a wedge-like position. Fortunately the pilot of the engine struck the ties in such a manner as to push them to one side, but nearly throwing the engine from the track. Passengers were considerably alarmed, fearing that the train had been wrecked.

No Say We All.

"It's a remarkable fact," said a Boston newspaper man to me yesterday, "that the dining car service on the various railroads only begins to be good when you get west of Chicago, whereas, the farther east you get, the worse you are served, with one notable exception—the Nickel Plate road." "I was agreeably surprised by the dining car service of the Nickel Plate road. It compared well with the best service on the western roads." "That was a high compliment, and I mean to let my townsmen know of the good route in which at least one Cleveland road is held by strangers." —The Lounger, in the Cleveland Town Topics 11-16-21-23-25

QUEER ANIMAL STORIES.

A cow that gives milk which changes to butter with out churning is claimed to be owned by Lawson E. Brown of Dexter, Ia.

A hen's egg that weighed a quarter of a pound and measured nine inches in circumference is owned by James Markle, a farmer, at Oneida, Ia.

An elephant has become so fond of a missionary in India that it follows him all over the country like a dog. When he calls at a house the beast stands outside until he comes out, and then it trumpets with delight and caresses him with its trunk.

The sandals is best known everywhere among the youthful anglers as the "quail," but peculiar shape furnishing the exact resemblance to the seed of the pumpkin, while in the Pacific waters, near which boys are as plentiful as sandals, he is hardly allowed to attain a size much exceeding that of the pumpkin seed.

A short time ago a hog belonging to Dan McGillis became quite lame, and an examination revealed a peculiar bony formation on one of its hind feet. When removed, it proved to be a ring of beef bone which the hog in its younger days had stepped on, working the bone up over one part of the hoof to the pastern joint.

Samuel Penn of Bridge street, Frankford, Pa., was found over by Magistrate Smith to answer the charge of attempting to extort money from Richard Baugh of Margaretta street. Baugh alleged that Penn had stolen several of his cows, and demanded $20 from him to go on a bond before he would make the charge.

A Louisville citizen while following a large dog has been sued for $5 damages by a man bitten by one of them while the noble animals were out on the streets for an airing. This is hard on the loving master of so many faithful creatures. Couldn't he compromise with the chewed-up party by giving him a pair of the dogs, or provide him a litter of pups?

PICKINGS FROM PAPERS.

Gentleman's and footman's livery must harmonize with the color of the carriage.

An advertiser in a paper says he has a cottage to let containing six rooms and an acre of land.

A stump orator wanted the wings of a bird, to fly to every village and hamlet in the broad land, but he collapsed when a man in the crowd sang out: "Young feller, you'll get shot for a goose before you'll drew a wild."

At a recent wedding of a fashionable Christian couple in New York city the "Chappals" of the bridesmaids was used in the service. The marriage took place under a canopy of white satin supported by four pikers.

Rev. H. S. Thompson, pastor of a Methodist church at Felton, Del., having been disabled by illness, Miss Thompson, his daughter, preached for him last Sunday morning and his wife lectured at the evening service. All he needed was a son to take up the collection.

"Shack, the Hair Cutter," is a new fiend that is causing little children and young girls with long and beautiful hair considerable trouble in the Eastern district, Brooklyn. During the last three months, at regular intervals this man has robbed the school children of their hair.

From 1850 to 1860 there came to this country 4,213,251 immigrants, of whom about 2,500,000 came to settle, while the others were mere visitors or sojourners. During the thirty-six years, 1856-92, the number of immigrants had risen to the total of 12,271,000, so that altogether during the century 16,000,000 aliens have arrived in the United States.

Among the many Russian articles of use and beauty now imported to this country are girdles for feminine waists. They are, like most Russian armaments, gorgeous to the last degree. The girdle itself is made of cloth woven with threads of gold or silver. The buckle is usually a large metallic affair bedizened with Byzantine decoration.

COLLEGE OF WIT.

Young Boston—Say, Indiana, is that the canvas Turner wiped his brushes on?

The empress of Germany is a very skillful violinist and often plays at the afternoon concerts at the palace.

"This latter," said Cholly, eyeing the waiter severely, "tastes old and strong. It must have been made from sour milk."

"Is it the same man that brought the bill before?" "Yes." "Pity he can say that I was out?" "No, I told him I thought he was."

The young subcontinentalist, telling the story of his play to the manager, said: "Me the soldiers crawl in at the window the clock strikes one." Manager—Good! Which one?

"Why, what's the matter with the boy?" "I was a-seein' how many animals from my Noah's ark I could hold in my mout', an' I've been an' swallered a giraffe an' a zebra!"

"I never realized until to-day how terrible poverty must be," said Mrs. Dollargilt to her husband. "Just how did you realize it?" "I couldn't find enough change to bribe the hansom man to go away."

Uncle Seaton had been relating his thrilling morning adventures, when his 7-year-old nephew remarked: "I was washed ashore once, too." "Indeed," exclaimed the old sailor. "When, pray?" "This morning."

Little Johnny—"You're workin' for a prize this term, ain't you? Bright Boy—Yes, and I think I'll get it. "Will you do I'll give you fifty cents for it" "All right for!" Boy said he'd give me a dollar if I brought home a prize, and I'll give you half."

WILLOW AS A CROP.

Getting Time Comes Once to Four Years, But It Pays.

In a beautiful sweep of lowland north of Melvale station on the Northern Central railroad, and about nine miles from the city, there is a peculiar farm, says the Baltimore American. It is peculiar in that it renders to its owner and tiller but one crop in four years and that a crop of willow boots.

The farmer, Antone Spath, came from Bohemia, fourteen years ago, and after reaching here, found comfortable employment at his trade, which consists in the cut of a pair of boots. A couple of seasons at the end of the little valley, it about paid for the first crop of willow shoots. Every year since he has gone on getting more and more out until the valley has become covered with them. Spath had learned of the art of weaving willow ware in his boyhood days in the shores of the river Main and took to it as his little plantation grew. Recently the shoots, stripped from the bark, are a matter concerning any one desiring them more than a passing consideration or so.

Spath is rather peculiar now in this country and the willow farmer in speaking of his business says as all points of Europe—except in the German provinces it is every composition thing to find willow plantations and willow weavers for there willow is used in many forms and in a greater number of pieces than I ever knew it used in this country. In Germany and Austria willow is employed in making at least twenty different sorts of bird cages. Only in America a metal is used—here now from a friend of I met one in Austria. Among the best families in Hungarian countries, cradles, woven by the German workers, may be found constructed entirely of willow. Then there are a hundred and one shapes of marketing baskets, baskets used by milliners and laundresses, baskets and panniers to be carried upon the backs of men and in sets for holding fish and food.

"To prepare the willow for the weaving we plant the slips in long rows, provide with a running stream of water, and cut them when they have attained four years of growth. The cutting time is early in the spring, before the sap is done running, and after tying them in bundles they are placed in tanks of water to keep them in a green state until ready for stripping. Stripping the willow is accomplished by drawing the switches through steel between two heavy iron standpieces, whose edges peel the light green bark from the white heart, and then, after drying or curing them upon long racks, we have got the willow in a form for the weaver.

"I can only manage a few, after I planted this farm with willows before any one thought of instituting any examples, but now, there are several other plantations located upon the Washington and Annapolis roads, and though you may find quite as busy years there you will scarcely find a more picturesque place than this anywhere, and that was one of the reasons that led me to settle here."

CULTURE IN THE HOME.

Ladies Should Wear Dresses cut with Instinct on Wash Day.

There is nothing that so becomes the house as cleanness and refinement, and it should be the aim of every wife to make the household an ever living attraction to the husband and children.

Instead of making a drudgery of her housework, the cultured wife will devote herself rather to the aesthetic and ornamental elements of home duties, says the Boston Transcript.

At breakfast, for example, instead of vulgar abundance, she will provide food sparingly, it being a well accepted maxim that the most precious foods are done up in the smallest parcels.

Consequently the cultured housekeeper will not waste her energies on plenty of it, for it is well known, or should be, that a man's appetite is better appeased through the mind than by catering to his stomach, and no true husband would hesitate for a moment between a refined sentiment embellished by a vase of flowers or greenery and a gross plenty unrelieved by floral garniture.

When engaged in the weekly wash the true lady will dress herself in a pretty long gown, garnished with flounding and set off by a smart bow of ribbon at the throat. It is not absolutely essential that the gown should be cut on trains, but if it is much is added to the effect of ease and gracefulness which is admirable in woman, especially when enthroned in her home.

When housekeepers to abandon the clumsy, all-shapen holders that too many affect, or feeling days and wear in tend pants de suede of some subdued tint, they would not only add to the beauty and picturesque aspects of the home circle, but if the gloves were sufficiently thick and the linen not too hot, no other hand protection would be necessary.

The practice followed by some housekeepers, when engaged in writing, of wiping their pen on their hair, or shaking off the superfluous ink onto the carpet, should by all means be discouraged. Too much cannot be said against the former practice, particularly when the ink is black and the lady's tresses auburn blonde and thereby ink spots on the carpet do lend a literary atmosphere to the home they are apt to call forth censure from the illiterate. The pen should always be wiped on the tongue. It not only counteracts the sloughing dressing on the pen, thus making the ink flow freely, but the bulk which is removed from the pen is effectually out of sight, as long as the lady keeps her mouth shut, which is by no means impossible when the lady is alone.

These are but a few of many hints that might be given to make home attractive. It is unnecessary to say more, as the lady of cultured, esthetic instincts in every domain of the household kingdom will suggest themselves, and, if followed, we shall soon have in every home in the land a veritable heaven on earth.

This Is Pretty Steep.

One cannot turn away from Chinese art objects—porcelain particularly—without a deep impression of the dignity and value of their varied colors. Many attempts have been made by European manufacturers to replicate them, but without success. The attempt to reproduce the same de bout, or shellack's head "red," as an Englishman fabulously believe he always dubbed the effort in disgust. The Chinese themselves have always set the highest value on their achievements in this line. For a long time they refused to part with the choicest examples of sang de bouf, or, as the "peach blow," and enshrined in Berry, and it is only in recent years that the foreign devils have been able to obtain them. The secret lays no other decoration than that of a single color, ranging from dark red to lightest shades from black to pale, the perfect tone or glaze the most difficult to produce. Pink we never see in delicate carmine, because we have to show the perfection of color united with artistic simplicity, at least that their

THE SHY MAN.

If He Will Realize He Is Not Without His Advantages.

One of the characters in a modern novel is made because of love a shy man. He is "getting on nerves."

Perhaps that is why he is so really delicious, says Longley Truth.

When he blushes palpably, but without looking awkward, one is drawn toward him by a certain community of sensitiveness, and so long as his is just shy enough, but not too shy, he waits over and more upon us.

Perhaps a really shy man out of his element is pleasing, but as the more or less he is generally very chary to give expression to the thoughts and ideas that he mostly keeps locked fast away within himself. One comes upon a shy jewel for two sous and then, in such cases, in the shape of unexpected thought that astonishes, he is generally because it seems so different from the person from whom it emanates.

I assure you, I think shy men are sometimes very charming, but they are most in little bit shy one's self in order to appreciate them.

The good humor are nice ones, and so are those that only come out of their shell in a noticeable, and not always them, so that there is a pleasing element of uncertainty about them which adds to the interest they inspire?

GO-TO-BED STORIES.

Children Often Troubled With Unfounded Fears—Mothers Should Be Careful.

Which I were able to write all the go-to-sleep stories that are told to the little folks all over the land every night," said a nodes-hearted mother to a Philadelphia Press man the other day. "It makes me positively sad to think of the small brains that are filled with distorted images. Imbecilizing ogres, ghosts, and the like, put in requisition to bring its hold upon them for several hours. I don't think mothers realize what an influence upon a child's life, and often upon its life after it has ceased to be a child. Is exerted by this apparently trifling matter of how it goes to sleep. Every night when I watch my little daughter creeping off to the big thoughts that sweep over her head, as her tired body begins to relax while her mentality seems to be busily and proportionately stimulated, I tremble to think of the harm that could be done in her or any child's case for Mischief is not an abnormal child in any way, by an ignorant nurse or thoughtless parent. The fact that every normal child creeps out for a bedtime story shows that its mental nature needs it just as its physical nature craves sweets. You want to give your child pure candy, so give him the unadulterated story. Leave out the fearful personalities, the grim and ghastly horrors—these, even if they are properly tempered by the gallant hero, are too distinct for the child mind to be. Say down by your little one's bed and speak low and evenly. Weave a funeral of his quiet ideas that tells of pretty flowers and birds and flowers and shooting here and having little boys and girls. Those would sleep to the weary but restless brain, not with the suffocating pressure of the gathering storm if with broad daubs, but with the soft clouds of the summer horizon that change from rosy pink to tender enveloping grays, and gradually deepen into restful gloom."

A Bookish Correction.

"Henry Clapbrick is trying to make out that the Philadelphia or Pittsburg would make more acceptable residence than the Bostons. This is entirely unfair as far as the Bostons are concerned. Nine-tenths, and even a greater percentage of the best writers, want the Bostons to win the pennant for the reason that they are a high salaried club, and it is more advantageous for the players, from a financial standpoint to have such a club win the pennant than one made up of cheaper talent. There is not a player on the Philadelphia club who receives over $2,500, and an offer was made to a pitcher more glowing in the league of $10 per week.—Boston Herald.

Long distance racing, it is predicted, will again come in favor with both onlookers and riders.

Growing.

The Nickel Plate road will on Sunday, September 3rd, increase their train service by the addition of a new through east bound train by merging the Chicago and Cleveland and Cleveland and Buffalo accommodation trains into a new through express, with sleeping cars, Chicago to Buffalo. Other important changes. Direct connection at Buffalo for all points east.

NEW IDEAS IN SCHOOL CLOTHING

While the boys have been enjoying vacation we have been lying awake o'nights thinking out new fashions for them. We have done wonders in the past in improving the character of Boy's Attire. This season we have performed miracles. Nothing in Fort Wayne can equal our exquisite styles and the variety is overwhelming. The combined efforts of competition may strain and strive, but still fall short in reaching our standard in this department, nor has resistance to hard wear been overlooked. Strength and style, perfection and originality distinguish every garment.
